HOW RECYCLED PLASTIC PACKAGING CAN HELP TO REDUCE YOUR WASTE & SAVE MONEY

Why use recycled plastic packaging?

Recycled plastic packaging is an increasingly popular choice for businesses looking to reduce their packaging costs and improve their packaging efficiency and profits. Manufactured in the UK and made from 30% recycled content polymer, this type of packaging provides excellent quality without putting additional strain on resources or the environment.

Not only does using recycled plastic packaging help reduce your environmental impact, but it can also provide a financial benefit. According to the most recent research, businesses that choose to use recycled plastic packaging have reported reduced packaging costs of up to 25%.

What are the benefits?

- Reduces packaging costs while still maintaining product quality.
- Improves packaging efficiency and profits by reducing the amount of material used.
- Helps reduce the amount of waste going into landfill.
- If manufactured in the UK, it can help to reduce transportation costs & carbon emissions.
- Can help to create jobs in the local community & increase investment in the local area.
- This also helps to stimulate the local economy.

How can I reduce my packaging costs?

Reducing packaging costs is an important part of improving packaging efficiency and profits. There are a number of strategies that can help you reduce your packaging costs.

One way to reduce your packaging costs is to switch to using recycled plastic packaging. This type of packaging has a lower manufacturing cost than conventional packaging and can help you reduce your costs while maintaining the same quality.

Additionally, there are now 30% recycled content polymer options available which are manufactured in the UK and help you save money while also reducing your environmental impact.

Another way to reduce your packaging costs is to streamline your packaging design and material choices. Consider simplifying the design of your packaging so that it requires fewer materials or switching to a lighter weight option. By reducing the amount of materials used, you will be able to reduce your costs.

You may also be able to negotiate lower prices with suppliers and manufacturers by ordering larger volumes of the same type of packaging. This can help you take advantage of bulk discounts and save money in the long run.

Finally, look into reusing or repurposing some of the materials that you already have. If you have any reusable packaging material, you can use it again for other products without having to buy new materials. This can help you save money and reduce waste at the same time. When choosing packaging, look for 30% recycled content polymer options that are manufactured in the UK. These British-made products have lower manufacturing costs than conventional plastic packaging, so you won't be paying the plastic tax when you use them. Not only will you save money, but you'll also be reducing your environmental impact by using recycled materials.

What are some recycled plastic packaging options?

Recycled plastic packaging is becoming increasingly popular for businesses looking to reduce their packaging costs and improve efficiency and profits. There are a variety of options available, all made from recycled materials and manufactured in the UK.

One popular choice is 30% recycled content polymer, which is made from recycled plastics and is designed to perform similarly to other conventional packaging materials. It's lightweight, strong and durable, making it ideal for a range of applications. It also has a low carbon footprint and can be easily recycled or reused.

Other options include recycled plastic bags, shrink wrap, bubble wrap and other protective packaging materials. All of these materials can be produced in a range of sizes and shapes to fit your specific needs.

By using recycled packaging, businesses can save money while reducing their environmental impact. It also provides an excellent opportunity to demonstrate social responsibility, as customers increasingly look for ways to support businesses that are committed to sustainability.
